

STAY TUNED

by Lauren Joyce

As students we typically have multiple projects, assignments, and obligations to uphold; with that, comes the aspect of what I would like to call, the never-ending waiting game. It seems like I am always waiting on assignments to be graded, articles to be accepted for publication, emails and phone calls, or to simply be at the next step of my academic journey. After many years of my ever-growing frustration, it dawned on me. While yes, we are in the process of waiting, it is more important to recognize that we are consistently doing. With doing, we are achieving, we are growing, and we are building. Without the “waiting”, we become stagnant; there is meaning within the wait, embrace it and let it be a moment you remember what a strong foundation you are habitually cultivating.

APRIL NEWS:

- Mr. Brian Patterson will be speaking at our upcoming meeting on 4/8 at 4PM EST.
- Certificates are completed and ready to be sent your way! Please email me your address at lauren.joyce@snhu.edu to receive yours!

LET US WELCOME THE NEW MEMBERS:

*Michelle, Kenneth, Jennifer,
and Mickayla!*

We are excited to support you along your academic journey!