by Lauren Joyce

I want to ask you, what drives you? What gets you up in the morning and motivates you to conquer the day? For myself, I see a bigger picture of how I want my career to look and subsequently my life. However, it seems that there are a million little and big things I need to do in order to reach this “picture” and at times I feel the destination is unreachable. In these moments I take time to reflect; I think about a year or two ago and how much progress I have made in such a short amount of time. I read a quote that said, “the day you plant the seed is not the day you eat the fruit”. If your dreams are bigger than yourself, you are bound to have days where you feel inadequate or overwhelmed. It is your job to recognize these untruths that step into your mind; it is important to recognize them, but more paramount to challenge these fatalistic thoughts. Once you overcome the doubts, that’s your motivation to manifest the attitude that you can do anything. If you haven’t heard it from someone else, then hear it from me, You Can!
